P.S. The sketches in this book aren't meant to be works of art, but are merely notes or scribbling to remember things, and keep me out of mischief.

This being a naval base the police wont allow any cameras or sketching, so I had difficulties in getting even this much done.

manila is terribly interesting, but so hot that I couldn't do a thing. I didn't stay long enough to get used to it so this is all I have to show for the sum.

Every day is wash day in Hong Kong, the clothing or articles washed, being hung on bamboo sticks across the street, while beneath goes on the endless shuffle and clatter. noise seems to be their greatest joy.

TYPICAL STREET IN HONG KONG

NOVEMBER 1929

Everywhere one looks there are children, the very young ones strapped to the backs of slave girls or their mothers, usually while they perform their daily labours.

It is most astounding to see the way they work, with these infants on their backs, and I cant understand how the Coolie women exist or the children can thrive under such conditions.

This old fellow was waiting to fasten the line of an incoming steamer to the buoy, probably a Blue Funnel. Hong Kong Harbour November 1929

Anything a little out of the ordinary which happens in China means a crowd immediately, and for me to stop for the barest moment to make a sketch draws such numbers of children, men, women, coolies and Sikh Policeman, that it is soon necessary to move away. Such popularity is both disturbing and embarassing and they crowd in so that it is impossible to do anything. In making this sketch I had twenty-two onlookers.
